

Halcrow

Sustaining and improving the quality of people's lives

Halcrow specialises in the provision of professional planning, design and management services for infrastructure development worldwide.

Our purpose is to sustain and improve the quality of people's lives.

About us

A leading consultancy in transport, development and natural resources, Halcrow employs around 6,000 people and generated a turnover of £465 million (US$731 million) in 2010.

The company has a well-established network of more than 20 offices in the UK and a further 74 international locations - from which we contribute to commissions in over 70 countries.

Established in 1868 in Scotland, the company is owned by a private trust and an ever-increasing number of employee shareholders, making it one of the largest independent consultancies in the UK.

Halcrow provides consultancy engineering services to a full spectrum of private and public-sector organisations, including government departments, public sector authorities and utilities, industrial and commercial companies, international funding agencies, financial institutions and private individuals.

Our ethos

Halcrow is a values-based organisation delivering exceptional experiences.

Our values:

- bringing imagination to all we do
- delivering on our commitments
- advancing our skills and experience
- enjoying what we do

Our conduct:

- act with integrity
- be open and honest
- respect the dignity of others
- share knowledge freely

Working with Halcrow

Our 'one Halcrow' approach means that whatever the challenge there is a Halcrow person somewhere in the world who has the solution.

The diversity of our people enables even large, complex projects to be resourced from a single point.

We energetically pursue project savings – we've achieved demonstrable savings for many clients.

Our ability to develop long-term relationships means we can provide stable, consistently high standards of service delivery. Coupled with this is a flexibility to provide one-off incisive action where required.

People and skills

The people in our business are recognised internationally for their professionalism and range of capabilities. By concentrating on project and client expectations, we have developed an exceptionally broad skill base, embracing such disciplines as:

- civil engineering • structural engineering
- mechanical and electrical engineering
- project management • design and build
- economics • environmental science
- facilities management • due diligence
- business analysis • architecture • geology
- hydrology and hydraulics • risk analysis
- planning and strategy • process design
- PFI and PPP • restructuring and privatisation
- transport planning

Markets

Key to our success is the approach we've taken to our markets. We've established a network of regions around the world, each one dedicated to specific market sectors. The result is a level of commitment and local intimacy which allows us to provide solutions shaped and developed by the requirements of individual projects. From this base, we provide services in a broad range of markets, including:

- airports • coastal engineering
- defence • education • healthcare
- highways and bridges
- hydropower and dams • leisure
- nuclear • ports and dockyards
- property development • railways and metros
- water resources • flood defences
- water supply and wastewater

A responsible business

At the heart of our business lies our purpose – to sustain and improve the quality of people's lives. You'll see our commitment to this reflected in the type of work we do and the way we behave towards our employees and the communities we live in.

We take a broad view of corporate responsibility and embrace a range of activities, from small, one-off events inspired by individual employees to large, sustained activities, such as those run by the Halcrow Foundation.

We aim to develop a programme which goes beyond individual projects and acts of giving to longer-term involvement with communities. We feel that depth of relationship has more substance and meaning for everyone concerned and ultimately leads to greater benefit.

The Halcrow Foundation

From disabled orphans in Romania and slum residents in Delhi to the disenfranchised in New York and the terminally ill in the UK, the Halcrow Foundation works to relieve suffering around the world. The Halcrow Foundation is a UK registered charity (no.1115729) established in 2005, initially in response to the Indian Ocean tsunami. The charity works in partnership with local non-governmental organisations, non-profit-making organisations and other charities across Asia, Africa, Europe and the Americas.
